

"Should we have gone in to Baghdad? Did we leave the job in some respects unfinished? I think the answer is a resounding "no." "I think the proposition of going to Baghdad is fallacious. I think if we were going to remove Saddam Hussein we would have had to go all the way to Baghdad, and once we'd done that we'd have to put another government in its place."

"It is vitally important for a President to know when not to commit U.S. military force. How many casualties should the United States accept in (the) effort to try to create clarity and stability in a situation that is inherently unstable?"

"It's my view that it would have been a mistake for us to get bogged down in the quagmire inside Iraq."

*Richard Cheney, U.S. Sec. of Defense
"The Gulf War:
A First Assessment"*

*Soref Symposium,
April 29, 1991*

"Should we have gone in to Baghdad? Did we leave the job in some respects unfinished? I think the answer is a resounding "no." "I think the proposition of going to Baghdad is fallacious. I think if we were going to remove Saddam Hussein we would have had to go all the way to Baghdad, and once we'd done that we'd have to put another government in its place."

"It is vitally important for a President to know when not to commit U.S. military force. How many casualties should the United States accept in (the) effort to try to create clarity and stability in a situation that is inherently unstable?"

"It's my view that it would have been a mistake for us to get bogged down in the quagmire inside Iraq."

*Richard Cheney, U.S. Sec. of Defense
"The Gulf War:
A First Assessment"*

*Soref Symposium,
April 29, 1991*

"Should we have gone in to Baghdad? Did we leave the job in some respects unfinished? I think the answer is a resounding "no." "I think the proposition of going to Baghdad is fallacious. I think if we were going to remove Saddam Hussein we would have had to go all the way to Baghdad, and once we'd done that we'd have to put another government in its place."

"It is vitally important for a President to know when not to commit U.S. military force. How many casualties should the United States accept in (the) effort to try to create clarity and stability in a situation that is inherently unstable?"

"It's my view that it would have been a mistake for us to get bogged down in the quagmire inside Iraq."

*Richard Cheney, U.S. Sec. of Defense
"The Gulf War:
A First Assessment"*

*Soref Symposium,
April 29, 1991*

